Chairman's Letter

Dear Friends and Supporters,

At the 100 Black Men of Atlanta, we believe that every young person deserves to be seen, supported, and challenged to reach their highest potential. The pages that follow reflect that belief in action—through mentorship, education, and opportunity that changes not just individual lives, but the future of our community.

In 2024, our mission came to life in powerful ways. Through the dedication of our members, partners, and volunteers, we guided more than 100 young men and women through leadership development and mentorship, helping them build confidence, character, and direction. Our Project Success scholars once again reminded us what is possible when expectations are high and support is consistent—achieving a 100% high school graduation rate and continuing on to college, military service, and careers that once felt out of reach.

We also continued to invest in the future of innovation. Through hands-on STEM learning and the 100 Scholars Robotics Alliance, students across Georgia discovered new possibilities—designing, building, and problem-solving in ways that prepare them for tomorrow's workforce. Today, a growing number of our scholars see themselves as engineers, technologists, and leaders in fields shaping the world ahead.

Equally important is how we steward the trust placed in us. In 2024, nearly 80% of our resources were directed straight into programming, ensuring that donor dollars translate into real impact—classrooms strengthened, mentors present, and pathways created. This commitment to accountability allows us to serve with integrity and plan confidently for the future.

None of this work happens alone. It is fueled by mentors who show up week after week, partners who invest generously, and supporters who believe—deeply—that our young people are worth it. On behalf of the Board of Directors, I thank you for standing with us.

As we look ahead, our purpose remains clear: to prepare the future while impacting the present, and to ensure the next generation is equipped not only to succeed, but to lead.

Chairman of the Board

With Gratitude and Resolve,

Sidney D. Barron

All In The Family: Ms. Warner and her Children's Project Success Journey

Project Success meets families where they are and walks with them toward what's possible. Through mentorship, SAT preparation, financial literacy, and individualized support, one family's journey has unfolded across generations—two daughters now thriving as a clinical social worker and a corporate risk analyst, and a son, currently in high school, continuing the program today.

This is the power of consistent investment, guidance, and belief in our youth.
